Moreover you must conform rigidly to certain rules and regulations: you must not do this—it will be de trop; you must not say that—it would not be proper. What an amount of meaning does that word "proper" hold socially! How many times is it not called into requisition in fashionable life during the day! In vulgar society it has, curiously enough, lately become a slang word. Those who have the temerity to do or say what is not comme il faut are socially banned—become parishs and outcasts_from that privileged circle of willing serfs who own allegiance and loyally obey the behests of the hateful despot Fashion.

But though the laws of Fashion are unchangeable and unclastic as applied to manners and customs, they are capricious, fitful and whimsical enough as applied to dress. ART AND THE NATIVES OF INDIA:

A correspondent of the Times of India dis courses as follows on matters of art in India:-

l like Lord Northbrook's public speeches They are full of manly sense, but I doubt whether His Lordship is right in thinking that a National Gallery of Art could be established in India on the principle of people sending art treasures to it gratis. Europeans don't care enough about India to give it what would be accepted by art institutions at home, while the natives don't care enough about art in itself to trouble themselves much in the matter. Sometimes. I think the people here have no sathetic tastes whatever, and that no amount of teaching or education will ever bring them to admire anything in art but the grotesque. Has a native artist over constructed anything beautiful? I doubt it. They have made many wonders, and many curiosities, but nothing that I know ofbeautiful. The Tai is the work of a foreign artist, and the temples and mosques of Indis, though grand and curious works of art, are hardly to be called beautiful; that is to say in that sense in which we would apply the epithet to the Apollo Belvedere, the Venue de Medeoi, good eye to effect in the arrangement of forther tural designs, but they have no sense of what we call beauty, as a rule, though there are excentions of course. I don't think they have seem to hold five scenery hideous rather than something beautiful; norwithin twenty odd years experience of India, and the people thereof, do ever recollect to have beard a native any a single word in praise of natural scenery. don't think the natives of India will ever become in artistic people. They are clever imitators. but nothing more. Their gold and silver work -which is the best work they have-is wanting in novelty and dosign, and time makes no improvement in it-rather the reverse. The Chinese stand a better change of rivalling in time the artists of Europe. I should not be surprised to hear in the course of my life, of a Chang getting a thousand guiness for a picture, but a lanasawmy, never, -

THE BISON AMERICANUS It is a singular circumstance that never within the last century has there been to moment when complaints have not come aress the Altantic bewailing the proximate extinction of the buffalo, or Bison Americanus. Before the close of the eighteenth century an English traveller unmed Turner paid a visit to the present States of Ohio, Indiana, and Illinoi whonce he wrote such astonishing descriptions about the multitudes of buffaloes that be had seen as to suggest that codfish upon the Dogger Bank were never more numerous than horned bisons at that particular moment on the American prairies. Nevertheless be concluded by eaying that the Indian and white pioneers were so reckless and indiscriminate i their slaughter of "the monarch of the plains" as to make it probable that "within a few years" the buffalo would cease to exist. ENGLISH HYMNOLOGY AND ITS DE.

The attacks which the English hymnology has had to meet from Mr. Matthew Arnold on iterary and from Monsignor Capel on doctrinal grounds have both received an unexpected accession of strength in the Edinburgh United Presbyterians Presbytery. The alliance, indeed, between Monaignor Capel and the United Presbyterians (a body founded as readers of "Lothur" will recollect, by two emissaries from the Pops) cannot surprise us, and affords new evidence of the ingennity with which the Church of Rome conducts her attacks. It is surprising, however, to learn from the report of a recent discussion in that Presbytery, how various are the grounds upon which the hymne fail to satisfy the reverend gentlemen's sense of poetry, doctrine or congruity. Cowper is "disjointed; one of Milton's hymns requires " a good many verbal alterations," eince he wrote it "when he was a lad." One speaker rejects a hymn " because it put him in mind of valentines"—a result, we should think, not enton, Wild, Grantley Berkeley, and Captain luted by Episcopalians," causes the rejection of another; a third is "stuffy." But we heaitate whother to adjudge the palm for literary acumen to the gentleman who objects to the words "Angels bending low before Him." that angels have not back-bones, as we have;" or to bis clerical brother who rejects the words (referring to the woman of Samaria). A PLEASANT REHEARSAL.

An ingenious plan has been adopted by a bank cashier, living in Davenport, Iowa, United States, for guarding himself against danger from burglars. Not long ago he became Prime Minister, to the President of the Roard impressed with the numerous accounts in the papers of robbers entering the houses of cashiers at night, and, after gagging and binding the inmates, forced the cashier to accompany them to the bank and show them the way to the treasure. This Davenport cashier resolved not to be taken in this fashion unprepared; and so be is taking preparatory steps, by rehearsal, to secure the necessary nerve and wigonr on the part of bis family whom the event takes place. > TURKEY AND MONTENEGRO. Some of the morning papers affect to treat lightly the difficulty which has arisen between Montenegro and Turkey. Collisions between the frontier populations of the two countries have, says the Daily News. "no real relation to the Eastern question, which can hardly arise out of the action of this high spirited little nation of 120,000 people." It is true that in tself a spark is not a very formidable phenomenon abut if piles of gnupowder are lying about, it becomes a source of grave peril. Evey one knows the chronic discontent of large portions of Turkey. It is only a week or two since telegrams were being daily received in all parts of Europe respecting the relations of Roumania to the Central Government; and the negotiations then going on bave ended in establishing the practical independence of the principality. Servia is as ready to renonnce Turkish enpremacy as Ronmania; and in Herzegovina, Albania, and Bulgaria, there are elements always ready, on the first favourable opportunity, to threaten peace. It is impossible for Englishmen to follow obscure political movements among semibarbarous races; but these movements are not the less real because unobserved, and by silently acting for years they prepare a state of things which may in an instant attract the attention of all Europe. If Montenegro were to declare war with Turkey, is it conceivable that the conflict could be limited to these two combatants f The probabilities are that the flame would apread from one district to snother : and he would be a bold prophet who should foretell that the Turkish force would be powerful enough to extinguish it. Even this does not express the whole case. We are naturally anxious to believe that Russia stands virtuously aloof from all Turkish complications; but we can scarcely blind ourselves to plain facts. Russis bas not given up the dream of making Constantinople the centre of her vast empire. Her writers do not pretend that she has done so; and although the probably does not propose to take anything lke immediate action, it is undoubted that she incessantly intrigues to make the ultimate accomplishment of her designs easy. second division, as before reported, and on the 27th of Rumadhan (6th of November) resched Fashir, the capital of Darfur, where we joined Zabir Beg, and where the two divisions are now located. The people have come in shoals to give in their submission to the Government of the Khedive. Among these are the serfs of some of the villages belonging to the late Sultan Ibrahim. To these we have given certificates of manumission, insomuch that they are now as free as any of the subjects of the exalted Governments, and are in the possession of the same privileges. All the inhabitants of Darfur have given in their ullegiance, with the exception of the relatives and special partisans! of the late Sultan, who nominated his uncle Hasb'-Allah, as his successor, and then took to flight. We have desputched a detachment in pursuit, and shall endeavour to persuade them to submit, but if they refuse, then they must take the consequence.

SAVING LIFE AT SEA. The terrible story of the Cospatrick, though

or should have brought back to us one which Nobody drank at his dinner in America, disregard. Nowhere, perhaps, so surely as on and the man was so pestered and so bothered is a wild, nimless rush to the boats; to get as | wisest course to adopt. quickly as possible from the burning or sinking ship is the one desire uppermost with the helpless souls. The boats but too often, it is to be feared, sadly inefficient in number, often sea, and then follows what, as we have all been Pills. I applied to your agent, Mr. Bell, Berkeley, for reading this Christmas time, happened to the the above named Pills, for wind in the stomach, from poor souls of the Cospatrick. Two assentials which I suffered excruciating pain for a length of time, ill-found in boats-the Cospatrick herself was indeed supposed to be favoured above ber fellows in that respect; but as they are now carried, though all available space is utilized that space is of necessity but mengre. For the supply of these wants Mr. Thomas Oullen, of Queen's-road, Peckham, has constructed a plan to enable vessels to carry double the number of bouts without encroaching on the deck space or the general working of the ship further than is now encronched, and one, too, by which the boats can be more readily lowered into the water without any accident or damage. A new form of davit is employed, so that the boat, though suspended by the ordinary blooks and falls, being controll. ed in the raising or lowering by a single rope, cannot, as so frequently happens, reach the water end foremost, but must of necessity go down an even keel, and can, moreover, when inthat position be instantaneously detached from the falls by one man. This invention, it must be remembered, has not as yet advanced beyond the stage of the model; but Mr. Oullen is en: abled to produce several very satisfactory and experienced witnesses who have seen and are ready to speak to the merits of his work. It is ON to be hoped that within as short a time as posaible this theory may be put to the test of practice. It may be mentioned that no change will be necessary in the present build of our passenger carrying steamers, nor will our sailors have to deal with any tackle beyond the ordinary blocks and falls. - Times.

This was a nice thing for an English gentleman-drinking in a bedroom! However, they had it, and he found they could have any quantity they liked.

The law was most systematically evaded. In Massachusetts men sold drink openly at the TWEEDS. doors. By and by it was necessary to go down upon them. The man knew that the police were coming, and although he might | COATS. have thousands of gallons on the premises, there were two or three bottles laid handy, and with virtuous indignation the police siezed the three bottles. The majority of Americans declared these laws to be worse than useless, to be absolutely mischievous. The testimony of all, except a few enthusiasts, was this—that they forced upon the people a law to which they were opposed, they turned their Novelty ingenuity into the channel of evasion without diminishing drunkenness, and they increased amazingly hypocrisy, lying, meanness, deceit, bribery of officials, and the general measure, which ate as a canker into American society. BILLIARD TABLES. Y LAZARUS & Co.'s Billiard Tables are now the only ones appreciated in India, as above. as a long and steady experience extending over 50 years has proved them to be the best and most suitable for the climate. O. L. & Co, have received a large number of very flattering testimonials from all parts of India, China, Burmab, Coylon, Manila, Java, Straits, and Persia, testifying to the superior make and quality of their Billiard Tables, and while thanking their Friends and Patrons in China for the liberal support so long extended to their firm, would, in soliciting further patronage, beg to mention the following facts which have conduced to the success their efforts have hitherto met with.

Every table is made of solid wood, well seasoned and not veneered. The Cushions are constructed on an entirely new principle, introduced by C. L. and Co. and unlike that adopted by English makers, and are much more durable and lively than English, made cushions. No table leaves C. L. and Co.'s premises until it has been standing ready finished for over 12 months, in order to ensure perfectly seasoned

In a narrow court of this street the notorious Jack Sheppard served his apprenticeship to Mr. Wood, the carpenter; and in White Lion Passage stood the "hostelrie" of the "White Lion," the scene of many of the events in the career of that prince of "cracksmen," who used nightly to meet in the tap room his professional friends and acquaintances, and with whose feats and various adventures the pen of Mr. Harrison Amsworth has made us so familiar. The site of the old "White Lion" was at the corner of one of the small courts on the northern side, and is now occupied as a carpenter's shop. - Cassell's Old and New Lon-

THE SUEZ CANAL AND THE BITTER

Ere we reached Ismailia, a tumble-topieces summer-bouse on the top of the bank, with broad steps leading down to the water, was pointed out to us as the place where the grand ceremony of opening the canal was performed by the assembled crowned heads of Europe-by all, at least, save England. Looking on that dismal, ghostly spot, it was was a caravan of sad-coloured camels, with met a large flock of meek Eastern sheep, with long, pendulous ears, following the tall in picturesque Arab cloak. Towards sunset bright blue waters are alive with fish-its shore, making the pretriest picture we had lime whatever. New York Tribune. yet seen. Groups of good houses, half veiled by shrubs, tell of the gardens that have sprung up since the arrival of abundant fresh water; and, conspicuous above all, the palace of the Viceroy, built for that one great day of festivity, and never used since then. We were told that already it is literally falling to pieces, notwithstanding some slight occasional repairs. Since the above was written the palace has been completely restored. Of course, on the occasion of that great ceremony, the accommodation of the town was vastly increased by immense encampments thousands of tents overspread the plain, and the surrounding desert echoed the unwonted sounds of festivity, while unbounded bospitality wasfreely showered on all comers. The whole scene must have seemed strange indeed in the eyes of the assembled sons of the silent desert, beholding the city of fixed habitations, which had sprung up, like some wondrous fungus of rapid growth, in the midst of the desert, and wnich, as if by magic, they saw peopled by unknown races from distant lands. brought thither by innumerable vessels. which now for the first time sailed into the lonely desert lake, hitherto known only to (or at least visited only by) themselves in their restless wanderings. Now, those blue waters reflected the stateliest ships that ever gladdened sailors' eyes, all decked with gayest flags-beautiful ships of all nations, peacefully anchored, while smaller craft plied to and fro with incessant motion. In outof the way corners of the lake were ranged the old dredgers which had done so much. good work, and which (as some one observed) appeared in the midet of that gay scene very much like groups of navvies in workingdress in a brillmat ball-room. Still more startling to the Arab mind must have been the scene after nightfull, when suddenly the darkness was illumined by a 20 % wondrous blaze of coloured fires -every house in the new city, every tent, every ship, even every dredger, was brilliantly lighted up, MAGRUDER'S GOAT. Mrs. Magruder's baby bays Max Adeler. is carried out by the nurse now, since the accident to its carriage. Magruder thought it would be a good idea to have a tame goat. to pull the coach, and he bought one for the purpose; but one day the goat met another goat that differed from him in politics or religion, or something, and each undertook to convince the other by jamining him in the skull. Every time Magruder's goat would rear up, preparatory to making a lunge #forward, Magrader's baby would lurch over backward, and when Magruder's goat struck the other goat the concussion would shake the milk in the baby's stomach into butter. Andsometimes the other goat would aim at Magruder's goat, which would dodge, and then the other goat would plunge headforemost into the coach, and meel the baby up in the most frightful manner. And in the midst of the contest a couple of dogs joined in, and Magruder's goat backed off and tilted the coach into the gutter, and the dogs, biting around kind of generally, would snap at the goat and cause it to whirl the baby around just in time for the bite, until at last the goat got dieheartened and sprang through the fence, leaving the coach on the other side, and it struggled frantically to escape, while the other goat crowded up against the baby in order to avoid the dogs, and finally knocked the baby out, and butted the coach to splinters.

I Company, are prepared to grant Policies based upon one of Professor Thompson's against Fire to the extent of $60,000 on any letters from the Challenger, referring to the one fact that in sailing from Teneriffe to St. Thomas the soundings indicated that the bottom of the Atlantic rises into a ridge about 300 miles west from Teneriffe, and that Insurances, such RETURN being payable on the from this, where the depth was 1,500 fathoms, ssue of the Policy... the bottom sloped gently down, until at 750 miles west of Teneriffe it sank to a depth of 2,950 fathoms, this continuing constant till within 800 miles of Sombrero. A remarkable relationship was found to exist between the depth and the character of the dredgings. At 1,500 fathoms the dredge brought up globizerina oozo, multitudes of minute shells, and fragments of coral, the whole composed mainly of carbonate of lime. As the depth increased the proportion of these shells diminished until in the deep water they disappeared, and there was nothing brought up but the fine red mud which did not effervesce with acids. This consisting of iron and alumina, was met with everywhere over the plain, and could not be therefore, as at one time supposed, the mud brought out by great currents, such as those of the Amazon and Orinoco, but must bave been produced on the spot. A specially noteworthy circumstance was the absence of shells, found elsewhere in so great numbers. In explanation of this phenomenon, Mr. Wilson refers to the concurrent fact that the water from these great depths is very rich in carbonic acid, the air from a depth of 1,476 fathoms containing 40 per cent. of carbonic acid, the percentage probably increasing rapidly with the descent. Water thus saturated with carbonic acid will readily dissolve carbonate of lime; and Professor Thompson therefore concludes that the uni- Only Medal Awarded Lims, 1872—The Silver Medal. form desposit of red clay is simply the in- Vierns, 1878—Grand Medal—"Progress." soluble parts of myriads of shells, the residue. hard to conjure up a vision of the bright and in fact, of a chalk formation now dissolved The animals living on this area are univer- N.B. 11 Perfumes, Lavender-waters, Eau d.
